Marketing Plan
Introduction

The Redmond Social Enterprise Project Board has embarked on an important effort as it aims to help change the future of Redmond teenagers and impact the community at-large with its social mission. The creation of Red’s Express, a non-profit café and food delivery service, demonstrates the unique way that social enterprise can serve the community by helping fund Redmond youth organizations.

As the business plan created by the Social Enterprise Group, LLC illustrates, this project serves community need in two ways: by filling a quick food service void in the Redmond business community; and creating a sustainable funding source for non-profit youth organizations in Redmond.
Marketing Focus

The marketing focus recommended is two-fold. First, promote Red’s Express brand, products and services. Second, deliver the social enterprise and community rewards mission via subtle integration with promotional messaging. It is believed that too much initial focus on the social mission will deter attention from the business enterprise goals and objectives. Finally, the marketing prescription includes an emphasis on relationship marketing. While traditional marketing tactics are essential, the complexity of the business community surrounding Red’s demands that personal contact and relationship development become essential elements in the marketing mix.

Marketing Plan Orientation

The marketing plan that follows builds upon the work done in the business plan and provides a framework for how to best position and market the Red’s Express project to meet the goals of the Redmond Social Enterprise Community Board. The plan calls out the business, marketing and social mission focal points that will help provide a marketing framework for the future of Red’s.

As this plan demonstrates, the road to success for Red’s will not be simple. It will take the diligent work of dedicated volunteers, a dynamic food service operator, committed vendors and the passion of employees (youth, perhaps) who can continuously sell the vision and mission to customers. Nonetheless, it is a road worth traveling because of the value the project brings to the community and the way in which it models for other communities.

Red’s marketing map is simple, focused, and approachable. The tasks to be accomplished and the list of to-do’s is manageable. While some might be looking for a silver marketing bullet, it is necessary to caution that marketing is the sum of all parts. Red’s leadership team will have to follow all of the focal points and tactics in order to paint the picture that will ultimately promote Red’s services and sell its products, which will help the Redmond Social Enterprise Project meet its overall social mission goals.
Vision, Position and Values

Vision
Red’s Express will provide a sustainable, reliable funding source to support youth programs in Redmond.

Position
Red’s Express is the fast, one-stop shop for healthy, delicious food for the on-the-go professional. Red’s mixes tasty breakfasts, lunches and dinners with friendly service and a social conscience. All Red’s Express proceeds are earmarked to serve youth organizations throughout the City of Redmond.

Values
- Social mission
- Community-driven
- Philanthropic
- Entrepreneurially-inspired
- Youth-supportive
- Business-savvy
- Locally-owned business support
- Nurturing youth
Red’s Express Marketing Plan

Goals and Objectives

Goals
- Make Red’s Express a quality service business serving the surrounding business and residential community
- Have people equate Red’s with fast fresh food that is available for delivery
- Be recognized as an innovative, community-based social enterprise and be able to respond to requests to share lessons learned
- Build a predictable and sustainable funding source for Redmond’s main youth prevention programs
- Be positioned to build upon the Red’s Express brand and extend it to other branded products

Objectives

Year One
- Launch Red’s Express and build internal business and marketing systems for successful operation
- Create an inviting interior, an enticing menu of products and a consistent delivery schedule
- Build a committed group of involved stakeholders which will be members of the Founding Community Board
- Create presence in the community for Red’s Express
- Recruit committed youth to work at Red’s Express

Year Two
- Generate at least $35,000 in profits for youth organizations
- Identify and begin planning opportunities for Red’s branded products
Market Analysis Recap

A market analysis was conducted by the Social Enterprise Group, LLC in 2004 at the location selected for Red's Express (Overlake Transit site) as well as at Nintendo, Microsoft and other area businesses. The resulting analysis contributed to a business plan that is aimed at drawing customers to the site, oversight by a community that is run by experts, and a scalable approach to meet community needs.

Primary market analysis included:
- Intercept method survey at the transit site
- Online survey distributed by Mircosoft and Nintendo
- Phone interview of Safeco and Nintendo employees

The analysis of 200 completed surveys, combined with additional research in the area, indicated there is an opportunity to sell fast and delicious food products to the community surrounding the Red's location, and that people in the community are receptive to the offerings that Red's will provide.

The marketing plan calls upon this market analysis and includes insight from visits to the site and the surrounding area, along with multiple meetings with the Redmond Social Enterprise Project marketing team.
Marketplace/Competitive Review

Red’s Express is located near the Microsoft, Nintendo, Safeco and Group Health campuses, and is in the middle of a residential/commercial part of Redmond. This 183 square foot facility is in the middle of a Park and Ride (with 274 parking spaces). The location is also the hub of transit service off SR 520 that serves these major corporations.

Approximately 5,000 potential customers pass by the Red’s Express location each day. These people travel by bus or bike. According to the transit authority, use of the site is beginning to pick up. Coupled with the availability of bike services next door to the café, the potential number of customers with access to Red’s is 10,000 per day. And that does not include people in the businesses nearby who drive or the residents that do not use the transit center.

While there is little competition from the 7-11 in the neighborhood, the free drinks and company cafeterias served by local businesses such as Microsoft and the availability of nearby restaurants make Red’s marketing effort challenging.

The marketplace challenge will be to change consumer behavior so that bus riders, bikers and nearby employees who drive think of the Red’s Express café as a THE place to find good food, fast.
Community and Political Attitudes

The community support for Red’s is currently high. Youth organizations are in crisis and the Redmond Social Enterprise Project that Red’s Express exemplifies is a unique solution. There are plenty of committed community members and a list of deserving organizations. The offer of free space for two years by the GRTMA and Sound Transit is tremendous and the traffic potential around the site is encouraging.

However, a unique business model like Red’s makes non-profit foundations scratch their heads to figure out how to get involved with funding. There is no real sense of need in Redmond and the amount of available volunteer time that the current Board has to serve this venture is limited. At the same time, the project has been plagued by fits and starts.

Despite it all, the leadership of the Interim Community Board has been able to mitigate all challenges and keep the momentum going.
Strengths, Weaknesses and Opportunities

Strengths
- Fast, easy access to delicious, fresh food
- Food made by locally-owned businesses
- Traffic from bus service and bike travelers
- Bike services in the building
- No similar service for several blocks
- Social mission of the café
- Vendors interested in offering discounted pricing
- Delivery service
- Major corporations committed to providing resources/marketing help (Microsoft/Nintendo/REI)
- Quality food standards

Weaknesses
- Microsoft shuttles don’t take people past the café
- Difficult car navigation around building
- Not easily accessible for people in a hurry in the morning
- Food service already within local businesses
- Lack of volunteer support
- Difficult to convey social mission simply
- Costs of products versus profitability
- No sense of urgency

Opportunities
- Providing services and products that cannot be found elsewhere
- Delivery service (even dry cleaning drop-off and pick-up)
- Desire for variety in coffee or food services
- Businesses with dedicated employees who work late hours (with little time for anything else)
- Microsoft food service and free beverages scaled back in 2005
- Microsoft and Nintendo employees tired of food service

Unique Selling Proposition

Fresh, fast food in time-sensitive, overworked business community.
Brand and Position

Brand
The Red’s Express brand is contemporary, friendly and tech-focused. It connotes healthy and fresh food, as well as fast service. The play on Redmond in the word Red shows the fun playfulness of the project while Express conveys the speed of service and the delivery.

The logo, with its orange and leaf apostrophe, continues that fun, friendly feeling by going against the expectation that the imagery and colors be red. The contrast gives dimension to the idea that Red’s is unique and has a sense of humor. The clean, even strokes of the typeface and the rounded letter forms illustrate the idea that Red’s is a place where everyone is welcome, and where the customer will have a good experience. Finally, the colors of the logo are healthy, fresh, new and current, as well as stable, practical and efficient with a sense of being juicy and tasty.

Position
Red’s Express - with its dynamic graphic treatment and its social mission philosophy - is poised to be the premier choice of quick food for all corporate business employees in the northern Redmond business sector.

Red’s Express Marketing Plan

- An investment in Red’s is sustainable support for kids in Redmond
- Red’s social mission makes it unique
Marketing and Sales Approach

The approach is to market "fresh food and fast" as a primary focus, followed by information delivery about the social mission of the business. By focusing efforts around the product offerings and building a loyal customer base, the ability to sell-in information about the social benefits will be easier and will have a lasting impact. In the end, it will not matter how socially-conscious the business is if the food is not appealing and the service is poor and slow.

As for sales, we believe that the staff must be energetic, the environment bright and cheerful and the offerings adjusted to meet the needs of the customer. Red’s should always be asking, what can we do to better serve you? It is also important to ask, what other products can we carry? All attempts should be made to provide special offers. Loyalty and referrals should be the underlying business mission. Beyond this we advocate using the Red’s business model as a public education tool about the plight of youth organizations in the Redmond community.
Key Insights
